FIA-NEZ Formula Offroad Championship 2010

Icelandic round at Hella

General information:

Hella is a town on the main ring road around the island, officially 93km from Reykjavik. In and around Hella competitors will find modern facilities catering for both the casual tourist as well as the those coming for a specific purpose, such as hiking or horseback riding.

During this weekend, Hella will be home to a blues festival, with live music being played at most restaurants and hotels as well as concerts during the day and evening.

At the same time the FIA-NEZ Formula Offroad Championships comes to the township of Hella in Iceland, they will also host the first round of the Icelandic Rally Championships for 2010. A special spectators' stage will be held at the Formula Offroad competition grounds during the lunch halt on the Saturday.

An additional drag race on sand for cars will be held on the sands near Hella on Monday 24th of May 2010 to which the the FIA-NEZ Formula Offroad are invited. The length of the course is 100yd (91.44m)

The volcanic eruption in Eyjafjallajökull glacier, nearly next door (~50km), will provide some unforgettable fireworks, should it still be active.
